These guidelines are a pre-release to coincide with the launch of the Fairtrade Textile Standard.
Scope of the Fairtrade Textile Standard

The Fairtrade Textile Standard

Fairtrade has always been about so much more than only the certifying of products. Fairtrade is about the people who grow our crops and about those who work hard at picking and processing them. Fairtrade already covers cotton growers, ensuring they get a fair price for their crops under two models, the Fairtrade cotton classic scheme and the Fairtrade Cotton Program.

With the ground-breaking Fairtrade Textile Standard, Fairtrade aims at making its impact more widespread to include the workers who manufacture textiles by facilitating best practices in the textile supply chains.

Fairtrade's vision for textiles is a world in which workers can enjoy secure and sustainable livelihoods, fulfill their potential & decide on their future. In order to achieve this, the Fairtrade Textile Standard sets the requirements that apply to workers along the entire textile supply chain which determine processor, trader and brand participation in the Fairtrade system under the principle of shared responsibility. Fairtrade's approach includes mobilising the actors in the textile supply chains to partner towards sustainable and fair industry practices for the ultimate benefit of the workers that make it all possible.

The Fairtrade cotton producers are not directly in the scope of the Textile Standard although they are included as part of supply chains that use Fairtrade cotton through the Fairtrade Standard for Fibre Crops.

The Fairtrade Textile Standard applies to countries and regions where freedom of association is possible. It applies to all operators employing hired workers in the textile supply chain processing Fairtrade certified cotton and/or other sustainable fibres. This includes, but is not restricted to ginning, spinning, weaving, knitting, cut, make and trim stages. Operators using Fairtrade cotton must also be certified against the Fibre Crops Standard. Operators under the Fairtrade Cotton Program have volume tracking in place.

Brands and companies

The Mark guidelines apply to all certified operators in the textile supply chain, regardless of the product a company wants to certify. They also apply to the companies or brands that manufacture the products using certified supply chains. Licence Agreements engage brands and companies selling the final products to pay a fair price and agree to fair terms.

Entities certified against the Textile, Fibre Crops and/or Trader Standards

Examples are not exhaustive and supply chains can be much more complex.
The Mark and associated statements

The Fairtrade Textile Production Mark is always accompanied by a Statement that, when put together, emphasizes the ground-breaking and inspiring nature of the model.

The Fairtrade Textile Standard is innovative but has many layers of compliance that need to be met in order to use a certain type of lock-up and communication.

The Statements that are combined with the FAIRTRADE Textile Production Mark are dependent on the compliance level that the company or brand has achieved for its supply chain or chains. One Statement is always compulsory. The Mark is never used without one.

Placement of other marks

The clear space between the Statement and other marks is the same as the distance between the Mark and the Statement (x).

Horizontal placement

The Statement may be placed right of the Mark. It may be set in one or more columns.
Overview of supply chain scenarios

Compliance with the Fairtrade Textile Standard

The Fairtrade Textile Standard is about people, it’s a processing standard for Fairtrade cotton and other sustainable fibres.

Sustainable fibres other than Fairtrade cotton can be used and the guidelines for determining these fibres are found in the Textile Standard.

There are three scenarios reflecting the different requirements regarding supply chain certification. Scenarios A and B, both signifying that whole supply chains have been certified against the Fairtrade Textile Standard, use the Fairtrade Textile Production Mark with corresponding compulsory statements.

Statement A refers to the achievement of living wages in the whole supply chain. Statement B declares that the achievement of living wages in the supply chain is a work in progress.

In Scenario C, a different version of the Mark is used with its own statement.

Product composition

Fairtrade cotton can be used in two forms: As fully physically traceable cotton from farm to final product or as part of the Fairtrade Cotton Program, through which Fairtrade cotton is sourced at volume from Fairtrade farmers and then mixed with other sustainable fibres. Respectively, the guidelines for the use of the FAIRTRADE Cotton Mark and the FAIRTRADE Cotton Program Mark apply.

When other sustainable fibres are used, the relevant guidelines for the respective mark apply when labelling items and for off-pack use.

The Fairtrade Marks can be used together on the same packaging material as the Fairtrade Textile Production Mark and associated statement.

Marks for other sustainable fibres must be separate on-pack.

Living wages in supply chain are work in progress

Some supply chains may be fully certified against the Textile Standard, but the living wages achievement is in progress, with a time-bound plan set in the Standard of a maximum of six years to achieve living wages when these are below the benchmarks approved by Fairtrade. Companies are required to be transparent about this progress. The progress statement is optional on-pack, but compulsory for all off-pack uses.

QUICK GUIDE

Fairtrade International licenses the use of the Fairtrade Textile Production Mark to companies that build fully certified supply chains in accordance with the Fairtrade Textile Standard, the Fairtrade Fibre Crops Standard and/or the Trade Standard.

The right to apply the Fairtrade Textile Production Mark is subject to the company or brand complying with the requirements of the Fairtrade Textile Standard and signing the relevant Licence Agreement.

This is a quick guide, based on the full Fairtrade Textile Production Mark guidelines which are part of the Licence Agreement with a Fairtrade organization. Once a Licence Agreement is signed, companies or Brands will have access to the document.
